

IFLA LAC Satellite Report

"Future of Libraries: What Will Content and Services Be in 2030?"
August 15, 2016

The one full day IFLA LAC Satellite Meeting 2016 was a success. It took place on Thursday, August 11 at the superb OCLC Headquarters facilities and devoted to Danielle Mincio, a long time IFLA activist from Switzerland who passed away last year. Under the topic: "Future of Libraries: What Will Content and Services Be in 2030?"

Thirty six authors and co-authors delivered 19 works, nine papers and ten posters, this included two outstanding keynotes papers by Jake Orlowitz from Wikimedia Foundation, and Lynn Connaway from OCLC, plus a concluding group discussion led by the conveners. Speakers came from four continents: 13 corners of the world: Argentina 2; Brazil 7; Chile 3; China 1; Colombia 5; Costa Rica 1; Cuba 3; Ghana 1; México 3; Nigeria 1; Peru 2; Spain 2; and USA 5. The number of registered participants that included speakers and presenters was 46.

Proceedings of the Satellite will be published, one for papers and another for poster papers, and editing funding will be sought. The Meeting a-year-long work was carried out by conveners Jesus Lau (México) and Belen Martinez (Spain), with the assistance of Sueli Mara Ferreira, IFLA LAC Chair.
